A court in Washington DC on Monday threw out a lawsuit filed by conservative activist Steven Crowder, who claimed he was wrongfully fired for tweeting anti-Muslim videos in which he called Muslim people 'bigots' and 'sharia Nazis'. In a 2-1 decision, the US Court of Appeals for the DC circuit upheld Crowder's dismissal on grounds that he had violated the terms of his contract. On one level, this decision is positive in that it helps clear a path towards a national standard for the rights of employees to use social media in the workplace. On another level, this is a sad day because it involves an employee being fired simply for expressing his own opinions - a right that is guaranteed in the US Constitution. A free society is one that protects the free speech rights of its people, not one that destroys them. Stand up for free speech Crowder should be allowed to express his right to political speech online in the same way that his employer is allowed to fire him for expressing his religious beliefs. Before his firing, Steven Crowder was a well-respected and productive member of society, who brought joy to millions of people online, including me. He did not threaten violence or harm, he simply spoke his mind and his employer disagreed with his views. Everyone deserves to be heard in the marketplace of ideas, even if you disagree with them. I hope the US Supreme Court takes up this case and sees it as a shining example of the importance of freedom of speech in America. In the meantime, I urge you to stand up for your free speech rights by signing my petition to Congress that we enshrine the First Amendment right to freedom of speech in law. Add your name here. First Amendment: The Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances. i don't know if it is a good question but i didnt found the same question already asked here on autodesk or elsewhere.. A: how to get autoCAD 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015, 2016, 2017, 2013 design x64, 2014 and 2015 x64 crack installer by product key? Autodesk does not do anything that would allow people to find cracked software on their site. Cracks are provided to people that buy the cracked version. If you have a license, then it is probably somewhere else - perhaps in your activation USB key or in some email or dropbox storage. If it is cracked, then you have no support, and can't expect anything from Autodesk. You would need to contact Autodesk (or whoever has sold you your license) and ask them to return your license and/or restore it. China's powerful 3D device maker, Digitimes is reporting that Intel is now in talks to use Baidu's voice identification and face recognition technology to verify users for the new Windows 10 operating system. We've mentioned the close ties between Baidu and Intel previously, with the two companies now having plans to invest billions of dollars in the internet's next generation of big data infrastructure. First off, Baidu is reported by Digitimes to be working on an "enterprise brand experience" platform that will feature a massive collection of voice and face data.

According to the report, Baidu will also provide users the ability to verify their identity and gain access to certain websites and services by creating a digital signature which can be identified by Intel's VeriSense technology. In a post on Baidu's official website, it states: Users can then login to an online terminal using the Microsoft-branded operating system or other third-party OSes, using their voice as their default sign-on method and password. The users' biometric information is stored as a "digital signature," according to the internet giant, and the system verifies their identity to ensure that they are a genuine user. When they log in, their personal data is encrypted and sent to Baidu's "Smart Web Bureau." This isn't the first time that Baidu's facial recognition technology has been linked to Intel. Back in April it was revealed that Intel has been working with Baidu to develop facial recognition capabilities that could eventually
