Features Key:

Deep Turn-Based Combat To defeat the enemy in combat, you must adjust your movements each turn in real time.

In battles, a skill tree includes various elements to create the perfect combination.

- In conjunction with the skill to increase the efficiency of combat, when possible, you will fight a battle in which your enemy has the upper hand.
  - A part about the opponent's error will be acquired as experience points.
    - By increasing your level, you will be able to strengthen your abilities.
- A battle system that gives the impression of a turn-based RPG continuously evolves and changes. It has been much-requested to be added in the Fantasy RPG series.
- A Nonsensical Three-Dimensional World Three-dimensional graphics are used to enable you to see the field and structures in real-time in a game that is extremely difficult to suspend one's attention.
- Three different kinds of maps are included.
  - Field maps are directly related to a battle. You will fight on a field map between battles. When your team is victorious, you will claim victory tokens. When the enemy team is victorious, you will claim defeat tokens.
  - Tile maps are squares composed of tiles. At all corners are safe spots. Similarly to a board game, you can defeat the enemy when you capture tiles, or you can capture tiles to defeat the enemy. Capturing a tile is the most costly battle. In addition, it is critical to take advantage of the enemy's fall move.
  - A dungeon map is a dungeon that gradually deepens. The map will not move, and you can freely move to any area of a map.
- Procedurally Generated Worlds All world generation are calculated at run time. Sometimes dungeons and towns advance in a new form, and sometimes you will merely repeat a previously generated area.
  - It does not need to be at the same place every time you play. The battleground is re-generated and organized so

From the fabled Inconel Superalloy, and one of the most popular and widely used applications of the Superalloy materials is for the production of turbine engines and other superalloy engines. Superalloys, in general, are used in high stress applications where high temperatures are encountered. Superalloys are nickel base alloys that are nickel based, as contrasted to iron based, compositions. The nickel base alloys used to make Superalloys usually contain a nickel content of 52 to 75% by weight and a content of a refractory metal such as aluminum, tantalum, niobium and/or titanium as a promoter, and additionally may contain one or more of the following additions: chromium, tungsten, columbium, molybdenum, rhenium and hafnium as a class referred to as "reinforcing elements", and one or more of the
